RELATED PUBLICATIONS

Users may wish to refer to the following publications which relate to the labour force and are available for sale on request:

Labour Force, Australia (6203.0) issued monthly

Australian and New Zealand Standard Industrial Classification 1993 (1292.0)

Current publications produced by the ABS are listed in the Catalogue of Publications and Products, Australia (1101.0). The ABS also issues, on Tuesdays and Fridays, a Release Advice (1105.0) which lists publications to be released in the next few days. The Catalogue and Release advice are available from any ABS office.

UNPUBLISHED STATISTICS

The ABS can also make available more detailed information in the form of customised reports. In general, a charge is applied for providing unpublished information. THE LABOUR FORCE SURVEY AND ANZSIC

INTRODUCTION

This publication provides details of revisions to the concordance between the Australian Standard Industrial Classification (ASIC) and the Australian and New Zealand Standard Industrial Classification (ANZSIC) used for Labour Force Survey (LFS) data. ANZSIC has been applied to LFS data since August 1994. A detailed description of ANZSIC is published in Australian and New Zealand Standard Industrial Classification, 1993 (1292.0).

A concordance between the two classifications was published in the August 1994 issue of Labour Force, Australia (6203.0), and in the previous issue of this information paper. Both publications included historical labour force estimates converted from ASIC to ANZSIC for the period May 1986 to August 1994. It has since been found that the concordance, which was based on preliminary investigations, did not provide the most appropriate conversion for certain Group level industries. An improved concordance has now been applied to historical LFS estimates.

INDUSTRY CLASSIFICATIONS AND THE LFS

ANZSIC, like ASIC, is a classification which serves to identify groupings of businesses which carry out similar economic activities and which satisfy other conditions (like economic significance). These groups can be used to define an industry. An individual business can then be assigned to an industry on the basis of its predominant economic activity.

The industry classification can then be used in collections such as the LFS, where employed and unemployed persons are classified to either the industry of the business in which they are employed, or to the industry of the business in which they were previously employed (in the case of unemployed persons who had worked full time for at least two weeks in the last two years).

DEVELOPMENT OF ANZSIC

ANZSIC was developed by the ABS and Statistics New Zealand for use in the production and analysis of industry statistics in both countries.

The development of ANZSIC resulted from the need to improve the comparability of industry statistics between Australia and New Zealand. While the development of ANZSIC reflects changes in the world economy during the last 20 years, it also acknowledges particular circumstances in Australia and New Zealand, such as:

- a shift away from goods-producing industries to service industries;
- the desire for closer alignment with the International Standard Industrial Classification of All Economic Activities (ISIC), Revision 3;
- rapid technological development; and
- user requirements for separate industry categories.

STRUCTURE OF ANZSIC

ANZSIC, like ASIC, has a structure consisting of categories at four levels: Divisions (the broadest level), Subdivisions, Groups and Classes. At the Division level the main purpose is to provide a limited number of categories which will provide a broad overall picture of the economy. There are 17 divisions with ANZSIC, each identified by an alphabetical character, as follows:

Division	Title
A	Agriculture, Forestry and Fishing
B	Mining
C	Manufacturing
D	Electricity, Gas and Water Supply
E	Construction
F	Wholesale Trade
G	Retail Trade
H	Accommodation, Cafes and Restaurants
I	Transport and Storage
J	Communication Services
K	Finance and Insurance
L	Property and Business Services
M	Government Administration and Defence
N	Education
O	Health and Community Services
P	Cultural and Recreational Services
Q	Personal and Other Services

The Subdivision, Group and Class levels provide increasingly detailed dissections of the broad categories. LFS responses were only coded at the Group (3-digit) level under the ASIC. A similar practice continues under ANZSIC, with responses coded at the Group level.

ASIC/ANZSIC CONCORDANCE

To assist users in making comparisons with previously published data, the following pages provide a concordance at ASIC Group level, compared with the corresponding ANZSIC Group(s). The concordance also shows revised estimates of the proportion of employment attributable to each ANZSIC Group(s), as compared with ASIC Group data, using employment information at the establishment unit level taken from the ABS Business Register as at May 1994. Historical estimates of employment by ANZSIC industry group have been compiled after converting unit records using the proportions shown in this revised concordance to ANZSIC equivalent Groups. Historical data at the ANZSIC Division level, produced using the revised proportions, are now available for the period November 1984 to May 1994. The revised historical estimates of employment by ANZSIC Division are shown in the following pages, and will be published in the May 1996 issue of Labour Force, Australia (6203.0).

DATA AVAILABILITY

Tables showing revised original, seasonally adjusted and trend estimates of industry (ANZSIC Division level) from November 1984 to May 1994 appear in pages 11–16 of this publication. These historical estimates replace those previously released.

From the August 1994 LFS, ANZSIC has been used to classify employed and unemployed persons by industry. Industry data are available at the Division, Subdivision and Group level (the most detailed level at which industry is coded for the LFS).
